Description: The Black Lion fighter bomber is an older Mandalorian fighter, and although it stands up to most modern fighter well, it has been phased out of common use. However due to losses of fighters the Mandalorians have been forced to bring some of these fighters out of storage and back into use. They have been put to use protecting many front line installations, where they can be used alongside more modern fighters, but as supplies and resources have been stretched, the Black Lion has been forced into use without support, and often with only a pilot on board.
