Kel Sapur

Kel Sapur is one of the galaxy's few remaining immortals. Immortals have a special connection to the force that almost always prevents them from being killed, the only sure way to kill an immortal is disintegration, dismemberment or decapitation, usually the latter.

Kel lived the earlier parts of his life as a drifter, working various odd jobs here and there until he began falling into a life of crime in the underworld. However, he soon became bored with petty crime and turned to a life of space piracy.

He served as a boarder on several pirate vessels, escaping capture on numerous occasions before finally planning a strike to capture a Republic star carrier as his own. This ship, a StarHaul light star carrier, would be named the StarSiege by Sapur.

The StarSiege was subjected to a full overhaul after it was captured during a raid on a small and worthless convoy, the main target was the StarHaul. All but two of the starfighter racks were removed and replaced with either a new Corellian quad laser cannon turret or a Comar heavy ion cannon. Sapur also removed the four Setec ion drives and replaced them six larger and more powerful Corellian ion drives to dramatically increase the vessel's sublight speeds. The two starfighter racks which weren't removed were optimized to fit Subpro's Wraith tri-fighters, Sapur's favorite at that time.

While Sapur may have been cunning and devious in this day, he never made it to be the bigtime pirate that he wanted. Consequently, the StarSiege was destroyed after it was ambushed by two full squadrons of Republic Z-95s near Turkana. Sapur somehow managed to escape death and capture was persued by the Republic and then the Empire (for reasons not related to piracy) for several years before finally disappearing somewhere in the Mid Rim sectors.

During the great Jedi Purge instituted at the rise of the Empire, many immortals (while still widely unknown to the Jedi and Sith) were hunted down and killed along with the Jedi due to their connection with the force. During this period, Stefon fled to the far reaches of the Outer Rim and beyond into the Expanse. Further pursuit by Imperial forces was hampered after the Battle of Endor.

Once the Jedi Purge drew to a close Kel returned from hiding where, through a series of questionable events, he was recruited as a boarder on board of the pirate vessel Death Hound under the command of Captain Dod Bule. The Death Hound operated out of the pirate haven of Celmoore in the Palvar Sector, preying mainly upon everything from the convoys of the Palvar Defense Force to other pirate vessels.

Kel soon proved his worth as a pirate and rose to become Captain Bule's first mate, a position he has held ever since while secretly planning a mutiny to take command for himself.

Special Abilities:

Immortality: Kel Sapur is one of the few Immortals in the entire galaxy.

Immortals have a special connection to the force that feeds him life force in times of need. Immortals may be killed through normals means, but unless his head is removed from his body, then he will awaken in 1D rounds with all wounds healed. Anyone taking his head will acquire his acute connection to the force and become immortal. Immortals cannot have any force powers or be force sensitive.

Force Sense: Immortals can sense when another is nearby (usually within 20 meters) and sometimes Jedi Knights may give off the same signal making an ignorant immortal believe that the Jedi is an immortal.

Story Factors:

Dueling: Immortals are drawn to each other via the force and often times engage in a fit to the death on those rare occasions when two meet.
