Story Factors:

Traditional: Klatooinian civilization was notable for its strong belief in tradition and the wisdom of elders. The center of their culture was the Fountain of Ancients, a slowly evolving natural glass sculpture on Klatooine's Derelkoos Desert. Long before the formation of the Galactic Republic, primitive Klatooinians discovered the Fountain, and revered it as a symbol of patience, tenacity, and the idea of strength coming from age. Their society was ruled by a Council of Elders, who granted young Klatooinians few rights. Klatooinians were taught the myths and traditions of their people from a young age, in a process which tended to suppress individuality. At the age of ten, they would be sold into servitude, with the most rebellious youths sent into the harshest conditions.

Description: Lizz was a member of the Stinger Mantis crew and friend of Cal Kestis, whom she met on Norsid. After a Haxion Brood bounty hunter had gotten the drop on the Jedi, she and her twin brother, Koob, saved him by throwing the hunter down a mine shaft, subsequently becoming close friends with Kestis.
Lizz was known amongst the crew for having a voracious appetite, with Gabs speculating that she ate their prey during a mission on Carida.

She was sent on a mission to Coruscant by Saw Gerrera to steal intelligence from Senator Daho Sejan alongside Kestis, Koob, Gabs, Bravo, and newcomer Bode Akuna by disguising themselves as Coruscant Security Forces, bringing in Cal to the senator. The plan succeeded, but during the extraction, the Ninth Sister ambushed them and killed the senator. Koob and Lizz attempted to fight her, only to end up killed themselves. Cal reminisced on her's, her brother's and Gabs' death moments after, and later mourned them and Bravo once safely in hyperspace.

Before missions, Lizz would bounce on the left cushion of the cabin couch on the Stinger Mantis as hard as she could to psyche herself up. This ritual damaged the cushioning enough for Greez Dritus to notice upon his return to the ship. While very powerful and dangerous in battle, she and her twin were actually very affectionate to their friends, happily hugging Cal once reunited with him and getting into a hand to hand battle with the Ninth Sister without any hesitation in a doomed action to protect him from her.

The twins only spoke Huttese and understood basic.
