Special Abilities:

Natural Miners: Gotarites evolved underground, digging through the rock and soil of their home world, this has developed into a natural talent for mining and underground construction, giving them a bonus +1D at these tasks.

Low Light Vision: Since they evolved underground far from the sunlight, they gain a bonus +2D to all sight based skills in the dark, but suffer a -1D penalty in bright sunlight (this may be offset by use of glare resistant goggles).

Powerful incisors: Although they don't tend to use it, Gotarites have powerful incisors which are capable of biting for Str+1D damage in combat.

Story Factors:
Packmates: Although seen across the galaxy, Gotarites tend to prefer the company of their own species, trusting one another, leading to them tending to travel in small groups and be encountered in groups of 3 or 4 rather than singular.

Description: Soont Madas was a Gotarite male priorite prospector and technologist who resided on the planet Koboh. He was consumed by greed and tried to access a Jedi Chamber using explosive roller mines. In reprogramming the mines, he became responsible for numerous hostile roller mines found on Koboh. Multiple failed attempts to infiltrate the chamber drove him to self-isolated obsession. Upon seeing his unhealthy obsession, his brother Filias tried to convince him to stop, but the increasingly hostile Soont ended up murdering him. Madas himself was killed after engaging the Jedi Knight Cal Kestis when Kestis learned of the murder via psychometry.
