Description: Brother Lemcke was a Mon Calamari on the planet Mon Cala during the Clone Wars between the Galactic Republic and Confederacy of Independent Systems. In 20 BBY, tensions between the Mon Calamari and Quarren people grew following the death of King of Mon Cala Yos Kolina. Backed by the Galactic Republic, Kolina's son Prince Lee-Char held a meeting with the Mon Calamari people, where Lemcke announced the prince's speech. Soon after, the Quarren attacked Mon Cala's capital of Coral City led by Separatist commander Riff Tamson. The Quarren eventually realized their mistake and joined forces with the Mon Calamari, defeating Tamson. After the battle, Lemcke crowned Lee-Char as the eighty-third king of Mon Cala.

Biography

Brother Lemcke was a Mon Calamari on the water planet Mon Cala during the Clone Wars, a conflict between the Galactic Republic and Confederacy of Independent Systems. In 20 BBY, King of Mon Cala Yos Kolina was murdered, leaving his son Prince Lee-Char to hold together a fragile coexistence between the Mon Calamari and Quarren peoples. Backed by the Galactic Republic, Lee-Char held a meeting with the Mon Calamari in the Mon Cala city square addressing the growing tensions between the Mon Calamari and Quarren—who were now led by Separatist commander Riff Tamson. During the meeting, Lemcke floated beside Mon Cala senator Meena Tills and Captain Gial Ackbar. Lemcke swam forward and announced that the prince had something to say before retaking their place next to Tills and Ackbar. Lee-Char acknowledged his people's doubts of his leadership and expressed his belief that the Quarren would not attack. The Quarren then attacked Mon Cala's capital of Coral City.

Lemcke did not accompany Lee-Char and the other Mon Calamari leaders after the attack. During the battle, the Quarren people led by chieftain Nossor Ri changed sides and fought alongside the Mon Calamari to defeat Tamson. Emerging victorious, Lee-Char was to be crowned king. During the Coronation of Lee-Char, Lemcke presented a crown held within a lee romay clam, blessing Lee-Char and stating that the might of his ancestors would give him strength. Ri placed the crown upon Lee-Char's head and Lemcke declared him the eighty-third king of Mon Cala, bringing peace to the planet.

Personality and traits

Lemcke was a male with blue skin and turquoise eyes. They also had yellow facial markings. During Lee-Char's coronation as king, Lemcke blessed the young prince.

Equipment

Lemcke wore a tall smooth white headpiece with blue markings. They were shirtless but wore a white long-sleeved collared robe with blue cuffs. Lemcke wore a wrap around their waist and thighs over white pants with blue markings.

Lemcke wore a necklace around their neck that held multiple ornaments, including a conical ornament in the center met by triangular shapes around the sides. Their long barbels were also adorned in ornaments. Lemcke carried a flowing staff that functioned as a swimming aid. During Lee-Char's coronation, Lemcke presented the crown of the king to Lee-Char within a lee romay clam.
