Extending Lightsaber

Lightsabers with variable blade lengths have been in existence for quite some time, even though not extremely popular among the Jedi. In order to create a variable blade length the lightsaber itself is constructed with a second gem to focus the beam. Proper alignment of the gems is extremely difficult which is what makes it a very rare lightsaber variant.

The blade size is selected by clicking the main on/off switch. Double clicking this button when igniting will extend the blade to its extended length while a single click will only extend it to the normal length.

These lightsabers, while ungainly and awkward at first, can prove useful when there's a need to take on a target from a greater distance or for cutting through thicker objects such as trees or reinforced blast doors.
