

Reskla

This is the homeworld of the Resklir, a primitive race that has not yet discovered space travel. This world is as yet undiscovered, and is located in the Outer Rim. Most of the surface of the planet is rocky, with little or no arable land, so the inhabitants live underground in deep caves where there is more space. The atmosphere of the planet is extremely heavy, with a thick fog obscuring light and vision. At night, the surface is pitch black, with no light permeating the thick fog from the stars. During the day there is little light, approximately as much as you would expect during a cloudy night on Earth.
