Planets D6 / Malsoun

Malsoun

Malsoun is a small world not far from the Imperial base of Delfii. Malsoun was originally colonized and turned into a major Imperial military outpost by Moff Uhlmann mere weeks after the conquest of Delfii.

Malsoun was originally designated to be a prison world, until Imperial General Ridnik pointed out that Malsoun's various terrians and enviroments would make it an ideal choice for an Army academy and training facility. Moff Uhlmann agreed, but elected never to construct the academy. After the Battle of Bilbringi and the death of Grand Admiral Thrawn, Uhlmann knew that he would not be getting any newly trained soldiers anytime soon and went ahead and built the academy years after the initial idea.

Today Malsoun is one of the largest Imperial Army academies ever. The Imperial Malsoun Army Academy turns out several hundred thousand trained army troopers a year. After it's first year, the academy was expanded, utilizing several prefabricated garisons and modifying them into both training facilities for navy troopers and even stormtroopers.

The main facility is located on a small island in the middle of the planet's only ocean. Several large transports shuttle trainees to various smaller outposts (the old prefabricated garisons) all over the planet to expose the troopers to various conditions. There is even a single submarine transport that carries seatroopers down to a submerged training facility a few kilometers below the surface.

The main facility is protected by an extremely strong planetary shield that covers then entire island. The smaller outposts each have anti-orbital missile batteries. Any ground assault would be suicidal considering that 99% of the planet's population are Imperial soldiers or soldiers in training.
