

Imperial Courier

The Imperial Courier is a large, well-armoured transport easily modified for roles other than transporting VIPs and important data. The large cargo hold is often modified to carry troops, repulsor vehicles or other offensive cargoes. The ship consists of a typically-KDY angular hull, with two large engine pods extending out and down to each side. The pods retract to nestle in against the hull when landing.

Many a Fleet officer has commented that the Imperial-class Courier is unsuited to missions where it cannot be escorted, as it is woefully unequipped to defend itself against a determined opponent.
