Description: The INT-4 Interceptor was a scout craft used by the Galactic Empire.

The INT-4 was a capable spacegoing starfighter, equipped with deflector shields in contrast to the TIE/ln starfighters of this time. A short-range flyer operated by a single pilot, at least one version of the INT-4 was designed to also be deployable from within the body of an AT-AT.

A version of the INT-4 was employed within the Centrality as early as 3 BBY, in events surrounding the Battle of ThonBoka. These probably included the several squadrons of "interceptors" guarding the secret Imperial Navy research base on the surface of Hosrel XI.

Vehicles of this type were also used by Blizzard Force to scout for the Rebel base on Hoth in 3 ABY.
