Droids D6 / Vertseth Automata Techno-servic

Type: Vertseth Automata Techno-service droid
DEXTERITY 1D
KNOWLEDGE 1D
MECHANICAL 2D
- Astrogation 5D
- Space Transports 3D
- Starfighter Piloting 3D

PERCEPTION 1D
STRENGTH 1D
TECHNICAL 2D
- Computer Programming/Repair 5D
- Starfighter Repair 4D
- Space Transports Repair 4D
- Capital Ship Repair 4D
- Repulsorlift Repair 4D

Equipped With:
- Repulsorlift Motors (Move 18)
- Feet latch together to create a single wheel (Move 12)
- Human Range Auditory and Visual Sensors
- Fine Manipulator Arms (can use human tools)
- Internal Data Store
- Vocoder Capable of Human Speech
- Small Internal Storage Area (1kg)

Move: 5
Size: 1 metre
Cost: 3,725
Description: Techno-service droids were diminutive service and maintenance droids.

One techno-service droid, designated Todo 360, was employed by the Duros bounty hunter Cad Bane during the Clone Wars. Under the pretense of interviewing him for a job, Bane lured Davtokk, a fellow bounty hunter, to Keyorin around 22 BBY to test the abilities of his new posse by pitting Davtokk against them. Bane sent his droid to guide Davtokk to the proper meeting place, though the latter refused, offering a tip for the droid's master. Later, after Davtokk had been apprehended by Robonino, Shahan Alama and Aurra Sing, the droid was at Bane's side as he emerged from the shadows and ended Davtokk's life.

Todo was later employed by Bane in his attempt to steal a Jedi holocron from the Jedi Temple's Archives.
Techno-service droids had repulsorlifts on the bottom of each foot, and were able to latch their feet together to create a single wheel.
A lone Jedi Knight was seen with a Techno-service droid .

Stats by FreddyB, Descriptive Text from WookieePedia
Image copyright LucasArts
Any complaints, writs for copyright abuse, etc should be addressed to the Webmaster FreddyB.