Description: Kadavo was a planet in the Kadavo system of Wild Space. During the Clone Wars, it was under the control of the Zygerrian Slave Empire.

Kadavo had a very thick smoggy atmosphere that caused the world to look purple from space. The particles in the atmosphere were caused by numerous volcanoes and lava pits, which covered a majority of the barren land masses and islands present on the planet. These volcanoes also assisted in creating huge spiraling cloud formations and other weather systems that could be seen from space.

The Zygerrian slavers built a labor processing hub in one of the larger calderas of a super volcano on the planet. The hub was a tall cylindrical building where a large number of slave were kept while awaiting sale. It was kept aloft above a pool of lava by several powerful repulsorlifts. It was also anchored in place by four cables attached to the sides of the caldera.

A Togruta colony that was abducted by Count Dooku in the Kiros system was kept there for a time. After an unsuccessful rescue attempt, Obi-Wan Kenobi and Captain Rex were also sent to the planet. They eventually managed to escape thanks to a Republic intervention.

Kadavo slave processing facility

The Kadavo slave processing facility was a Zygerrian mining complex on the planet Kadavo. It was built over a deep crater as a deterrent towards rebellious slaves and was commanded by Keeper Agruss. During the Clone Wars, a Togruta artisan colony was abducted from Kiros system and brought to the facility. Jedi Master Obi-Wan Kenobi and Clone Captain Rex were enslaved there too after an unsuccessful rescue attempt of Governor Gupat Roshti, who was imprisoned on Zygerria.

Soon, Anakin Skywalker and Ahsoka Tano learned of the facility's location and spearheaded an attack by the 104th Battalion, led by Jedi General Plo Koon and Admiral Barton Coburn. Although Agruss attempted to kill the slaves on Count Dooku's orders, a cruiser was maneuvered beneath the facility to prevent most of them from falling to their deaths. Afterwards, Rex killed Agruss with an electrostaff, and the Republic gunships destroyed the facility.
