Description: The Kob sonic blaster was a hand held weapon developed by General Kruskob Tiltanka of the Nagai.

It became the signature hand weapon of the species and many saw it as an elegant weapon. This sonic blaster had a variable weapon setting allowing the user to determine how powerful a sonic blaster the device would generate at its target.

The sonic blasters were used extensively by the Nagai against their Tof invaders during the later years of the Nagai-Tof war. Before they were developed the Nagai had used more standard blasters. The weapons were also tested on captives on the planet Iskalon and then deployed against Luke Skywalker and Lando Calrissian as they fought the Nagai occupation troops.
