Description: Misik was a Human male who served the Galactic Empire as a stormtrooper, and who received training as a scout trooper. Hailing from the desert world of Tatooine, Misik had managed to earn a solid reputation with a blaster, and was known for his work in helping develop speeder bike tactics for the Empire. As of the year 4 ABY, he had been promoted to the rank of corporal, and was part of the Imperial detachment assigned to protect the second Death Star's shield bunker situated on the Sanctuary Moon of Endor. Eventually, Misik found himself in pursuit of various Rebel infiltrators on Endor, and was killed when his speeder bike was damaged by Luke Skywalker, causing it to crash into an overturned tree.

Personality and traits

During his career as an Imperial soldier, Misik developed a reputation within the military as an accurate and lethal shot with a blaster. Misik was also tactically minded and worked closely with fellow scout trooper Sergeant Barich in the development of specialized speeder bike tactics, hoping that one day his efforts would afford him a position on the Emperor's Demonstration Team.
