Description: Faddaff Davenspon was a Deymasollian female with an innate feel for starship systems who worked as an outlaw tech-for-hire. In 35 ABY, she spent time in the bar of the Spice Runners' Den in Kijimi City on the planet Kijimi shortly before it was destroyed by the First Order.

Faddaff Davespon was a Deymasollian female, born in around 265 BBY, who worked as a outlaw tech-for-hire and for many winters lived on the planet Kijimi. In 35 ABY, she stood with two hooded figures in the bar of the Spice Runners' Den in Kijimi City when the Spice Runner Zorii Bliss led a group of Resistance agents through the room. Not long after the encounter, the First Order, who had been occupying Kijimi, pulled all their forces from the world and destroyed it.

Personality and traits
Faddaff Davenspon had an innate feel for starship systems and was willing to cut a deal to get her hands on technology that intrigued or excited her. This was especially true of starship designs that she had not previously encountered in her long and well traveled life. Like all Deymasollian, Davenspon had a keen memory and would never have settled for a routine job. She had yellow skin, black eyes and a white fur coat that had grown in thicker over her many winters on Kijimi. The Deymasollian's delicate fingers were well scaled for fine technology work.

Equipment
Davenspon wore a black outfit including boots and gloves and had three grease tanks attached to her chest. She used a pair of gray goggles with yellow lenses.
