These are an estimate of the powers that Daka possessed, although as a Dathomirian Witch her powers manifested in different ways to Jedi and Sith, for example her Force Lightning was Green, and her Absorb/Dissipate Energy (or possibly Greater Force Shield) formed a visible green bubble around her, and her Injure/Kill formed flames around the target. She was also able to manifest her abilities over a far longer range than Sith or Jedi seemed to be able, often with the trappings of magic such as potions or crystals, attacking enemies with Telekinesis or Injure/Kill using a lock of their hair.

Robes,

Description: Daka, also known as Old Daka, was an elderly female Nightsister who lived on Dathomir during the Clone Wars. The oldest and wisest of the Nightsisters, her knowledge of arcane magicks was unprecedented, lending her the reputation of being the most powerful member of her clan. Its leader, Mother Talzin, regarded Daka so in particular. One such ability was resurrecting the dead. The skill was notably used during the Battle of Dathomir, where the sisters stood against the vengeful Count Dooku's Confederacy of Independent Systems. The sisterhood's victory was not to be, however, as Daka was stabbed by one of Supreme Commander of the Droid Army General Grievous' lightsabers.[3]

Biography
Daka was the oldest and wisest Dathomirian of Mother Talzin's clan, her knowledge of the ancinet Magicks unmatched. Due to her age and physical frailty, Daka resided in Nightsister fortress, the settlement of Talzin's clan, in a place known as the Hidden Cave, which could only be accessed by a spell. [3]

In retaliation of Assaj Ventress' betrayal and plots against him, the leader of the Confederacy of Independent Systems Count Dooku dispatched General Grevious and the Droid Army to wipe out the Nightsisters so they could prove no further threat. As the battle began, Ventress delacred that the young would need reinforcements to survive the onslaught brought on by the Droid forces. [3]

Talzin journeyed to the Hidden Cave, coming before Old Daka, who agreed to use a spell to unleash the Undead nightsisters as reinforcements against the droids. The undead now awake, they aided the living Nightsister in fighting back the droids. However, despite the support recover from the zombies, the Nightsisters were outmatched by the droid army, which pushed forwards. Dooku sent Grevious directly to Talzin in order to kill her before she could comeplete the spell to take the Counts life. Following the source of the magick, Grevious made his way through the fortress, and had a Commando droid blast through the walls of the Hidden Cave, giving him easy access. Daka was helpless to stop the General, who roughly grabbed her and drove one of his Lightsabers into her chest, instantly killing the eldest of the witches of Dathomir, and flinging the corpse aside. With Daka dead, the undead army fell to ruin, leading to the swift extermination of the rest of the Nighsisters by overwhelming droid forces. [3]

Legacy

The conclusion of the Battle of Dathomir left Ventress and Talzin the only survivors, and left the former with a great sense of loss and guilt. [3]
