Creatures D6 / Worrt (Desert Amphibian)

Name: Worrt
Designation: Non-sentient
Classification: Amphibian
Average height: 1.5 meters
Skin color: Brown
Eye color: Yellow
Distinctions: Toothy mouth, purple prehensile tongue dexterous forelimbs, heat-sensitive palps, two cranial antennae
Homeworld: Tatooine
Habitat: Desert
Diet: Carnivore

Dexterity: 2D
Perception: 2D
Strength: 3D

Special Abilities

Toothy mouth: Worrt have a mouth full of strong teeth laced with a venom potent enough to kill a bantha, this does 6D damage to anyone bitten by a Worrt.

Desert Dwellers: Worrt are native dwellers of the desert and survive on little water, mainly derived from the creatures they eat. Giving them a bonus +2D on desert survival tests.

Move: 6
Orneriness: 3D

Description: Worrts were a non-sentient species that hailed from the desert of the planet Tatooine. These squat, large-mouthed creatures caught prey by sitting stationary in the sand and then using their purple prehensile tongues to wrap around passing rodents, insects or birds.

Biology and appearance

Worrts were squat and spiky creatures whose appearance bore similarities to that of chubas. They had brown, warty skin and measured 1.50 meters in height. They were quadrupeds with dexterous forelimbs. A worrt's head featured a pair of sensitive cranial palps, two bulbous eyes that could be yellow in hue, two nostrils, and a large mouth. That mouth contained a purple prehensile tongue, and strong teeth laced with a venom potent enough to kill a bantha. The eyelids of the worrts could keep sand out of their eyes, and their saliva was also capable of jamming a blaster. Worrts lay large amounts of small, soft eggs which were harvested for food and used as ingredients in drinks served at cantinas.

Behavior and intelligence

Worrts were predatory creatures who lived on desert planets. Worrts fed mostly on insects and rodents. When hungry, a worrt would settle into the sand, becoming indistinguishable from a rocky outcropping, and wait for a prey to pass by it. When its victim came close enough, the predator threw its purple prehensile tongue out of its mouth and wrapped it around the prey. The worrt's prehensile tongue then snapped back, throwing the food down its throat, devouring it whole and belching loud.

History
The chuba-like worrts lived in the desertic wastes of Tatooine, a suns-scorched planet located in the Outer Rim Territories. The most notable worrt in the galaxy may have been the one lived on the road to Jabba the Hutt's Palace in the Dune Sea of Tatooine around the time of the Battle of Endor. Three years later, Han Solo and Lando Calrissian encountered a worrt named Korrg kept by the pilot Taka Jamoreesa. Around thirty years after the Battle of Endor, a Nu-Cosian traveling merchant and storyteller named Bobbajo kept a worrt named J'Rrosch as a pet. A worrt was held in a tank at Oga's Cantina in Batuu's Black Spire, where it laid fresh eggs every day that were used as an ingredient in drinks, such as Jabba Juice and Carbon Freeze.

Stats by FreddyB, Descriptive Text from WookieePedia.
Image copyright LucasArts.
Any complaints, writs for copyright abuse, etc should be addressed to the Webmaster FreddyB.