Special Abilities:

Invisibility: Defel receive a +3D bonus when using the sneak skill.

Claws: The claws of the Defel can inflict STR+2D damage.

Light Blind: Defels eyes can only detect ultraviolet light, and the presence of any other light effectively blinds the Defel. Defel can wear special sight visors which block out all other light waves, allowing them to see, but if a Defel loses its visor, the difficulty of any task involving sight is increased by one level.

Story Factors:

Reputation: Defels are considered to be a myth by most of the galaxy - therefore, when they are encountered, they are often thought to be supernatural beings. Most Defel in the galaxy enjoy taking advantage of this perception.

Overconfidence: Most Defel are comfortable knowing that, if they wish to hide, no one will be able to spot them. They often ignore surveillance equipment and characters who might have special perception abilities when they should not.

Description: Arleil Schous was a Defel male fortune hunter who spent time in Chalmun's Spaceport Cantina on the planet Tatooine shortly before the Battle of Yavin. While in the cantina he sat near the door at a table with the Arcona Hem Dazon, the Advozse Bom Vimdin, the Siniteen Pons Limbic and the Stennes Shifter Braconnor Bakiska. During the time the group spent together in the cantina, the Jedi Master Obi-Wan Kenobi and the former moisture farmer Luke Skywalker entered the establishment looking for a pilot to take them to the planet Alderaan. By the time Schous was present in the cantina, he was fairly elderly for a Defel and was beginning to lose his species' ability to bend light around their bodies in order to become practically invisible.
