Description: Reyé Hollis was a Human male sergeant of the Alliance Special Forces during the Galactic Civil War. A native of the planet Naboo and the son of a Clone Wars veteran, Hollis fought with the Rebel Alliance during the Battle of Hoth in 3 ABY, where he distinguished himself by rescuing and covering the evacuation of many of his fellow Rebel soldiers before being wounded. For his acts of selfless valor, Hollis was awarded the Kenobi Medallion and a promotion.

Biography
Reyé Hollis was born and raised on the Mid Rim planet of Naboo, the son of Lutin Hollis, who served with the Royal Naboo Security Forces before and during the Clone Wars. Following in his father's footsteps, Hollis fought with the Alliance to Restore the Republic during the subsequent Galactic Civil War, eventually being assigned to the Alliance High Command headquarters of Echo Base on the ice planet Hoth by 3 ABY. At some point during his career with the Rebel Alliance, Hollis earned the Kalidor Crescent, a prestigious award.

While on Hoth, Hollis served with Echo Base's complement of Special Forces troops under the command of Colonel Ledick Firest, as one of Firest's top sergeants. When the Galactic Empire discovered the existence of Echo Base in 3 ABY, Hollis helped prepare the base's perimeter defenses in the face of the imminent Imperial invasion.

Hollis fought in the Rebels' icy trenches during the Battle of Hoth, warning his men to stay low to avoid being shot down by the Imperials' E-Web heavy repeating blasters. He distinguished himself during the battle by rescuing a cut-off squad of Rebel soldiers, pulling two of his medical personnel out of the way of an advancing All Terrain Scout Transport, and finally being wounded while manning a DF.9 anti-infantry battery to cover the retreat of his company.

Hollis was the only sergeant in Firest's five companies to survive the staggering Rebel defeat at the Battle of Hoth. He received the Kenobi Medallion, a bronze device for his previously earned Kalidor Crescent, and a promotion for his acts of heroism during the battle.

Personality and traits
Hollis' Kenobi Medallion, earned during the Battle of Hoth, demonstrated his acts of selfless valor in helping to rescue several Echo Base soldiers, including his fleeing company, at the expense of his own safety. A Human male, Hollis had light skin.

Equipment
Hollis wore the Rebel Echo Base field troops' standard cold-weather armor during the Battle of Hoth, including headgear, anti-glare goggles, scarf, padded vest, thermal flak jacket, gloves, and backpack. He also carried binoculars.
