Description: Yuzzums were a sentient species native to the Forest Moon of Endor. A Yuzzum named Joh Yowza occasionally sang with the Max Rebo Band, while another known as Wam Lufba worked as an exterminator.

Biology and appearance
A sentient species, Yuzzums were shaggy, fur-covered bipeds with rotund bodies, whose long legs allowed them to run fast and catch prey on Endor's plains. They also had a pair of skinny arms ending in four-fingered hands, two forward-facing eyes located at the top of their skull, and antenna-like ears. The mouth of a Yuzzum was wide and filled with blunted teeth. Thanks to their rangy limbs, they were taller than Ewoks.

Society and culture
Described as "dreamy wanderers," Yuzzums only used the most basic tools, unlike the Ewoks, who had advanced stone-age technology. They tamed and rode rakazzak beasts to help them hunt "rugger," rodents that hid in tall grasses, which they enjoyed roasted. Yuzzums spoke the language of the same name, and were impressive singers. They brewed a potent wine that non-Yuzzums could only safely consume when mixed with the simpler, sweeter wine of the Ewoks.

Yuzzums in the galaxy
Native to the plains of the Forest Moon of Endor, some Yuzzums left their homeworld on passing starships and founded populations on other worlds. Long before the Imperial Era, a Yuzzum was present during the arrest of Momin. By the year 4 ABY, a Yuzzum singer named Joh Yowza performed with the Max Rebo Band at Jabba's Palace on the planet Tatooine, while another known as Wam Lufba worked there as an exterminator.
