Description: The Preox-Morlana personnel carrier[1] was a class of personnel carrier owned and operated by the Pre-Mor Authority. It was utilized to transport members of the Pre-Mor Enforcement to the different territories and star systems under the jurisdiction of Preox-Morlana. During the Imperial Era, one of these personnel carriers was utilized in 5 BBY to transport three teams of Corpos, including Deputy Inspector Syril Karn, to Ferrix. The teams would collectively stage the operation to apprehend Cassian Jeron Andor.[2]

Description

The Preox-Morlana personnel carrier was a hyperdrive-capable armed multi-ship and personnel carrier utilized by the Pre-Mor Enforcement until 5 BBY. It was pyramidoid in shape, with a forward facing bridge and docking assembly capable of storing 5 Mobile Tac-Pods accessible from an atrium in the lower decks of the ship. Directly below the docking assembly there was a ventral dual laser turret and a communications unit was mounted directly behind it, on the rear of the ship. The front deck was marked with the emblem of the Preox-Morlana corporate authority and was armed with two forward-facing heavy laser cannons.[3]

The interior of the ship was relatively plain and utilitarian as it was meant for military operations. There were weapon racks and cargo sockets on several walls while at least the docking atrium lacked any chairs.[3]
