Description: The StreetBoss 50-50 was a landspeeder produced by Byblos TurboDrive around the year 34 ABY and used mainly in Canto Bight on the planet Cantonica. It was constructed in a simple, rectangular shape. While there were two open seats in the back, which offered space for a pilot and a passenger, there were power turbines on the sides, which were not revealed in contrast to many other landspeeders. In addition to some other system modifications, Hulb Toxx also equipped his StreetBoss with a personal defense energy field that would push away any person that got too close to the speeder.
