Description: "Hexx" was a clone stormtrooper in service to the Galactic Empire who operated on the planet Barton IV in 18 BBY. After being stationed at the depot for more than a year, Hexx was killed in action by insurgents who terrorized the Imperial Depot.

Biography
Sometime around 19 BBY, Hexx and his squad, under the command of Clone Commander Mayday, were assigned to guard an Imperial supply depot on the planet of Barton IV. After more than a year of being stationed on the post, the majority of Mayday's squad had been killed fighting off local insurgents, leaving behind Hexx, Veetch, and Mayday as the only surviving troopers by the time clone commando CT-9904 "Crosshair" and Imperial Lieutenant Nolan arrived to reinforce the squad in around 18 BBY.

While Crosshair and Mayday were out surveying the depot's perimeter during a blizzard, the Imperial depot was attacked once more by the local insurgents. As he rushed to the depot's defense, Hexx was killed during the attack. Mayday would later retrieve Hexx's helmet and display it alongside the helmets of his other deceased men inside of the Imperial depot.

Personality and traits
A clone of the bounty hunter Jango Fett, Hexx was a human male that stood 1.83 meters tall.

Equipment
As a clone stormtrooper, Hexx was equipped with standard-issue Phase II clone trooper armor, and was armed with a DC-15A blaster carbine. After more than a year without maintenance or repair, Hexx's armor was broken and disheveled, and was loosely held together by cloth wrappings.
