Description: Plazir-15 was a planet located in the Outer Rim Territories. During the New Republic Era, the planet was an independent world under a elective monarchy with direct democracy.

Description
From space, Plazir-15 appeared as a lush planet with large oceans and vegetation. On the surface, the planet was covered in grasslands, rivers, and tropical forests. The atmosphere of Plazir-15 was breathable for a wide variety of humanoid species. The inhabitants of the planet primarily lived in bio-domes which contained urban and metropolitan cities. Outside of the domes were landing pads and a hyperloop system.

History
For the majority of its history, Plazir-15 was ruled by unelected absolute monarchs from a royal dynasty. Following the fall of the Empire, the leader of Plazir-15's royal family, the Duchess, along with her former Imperial husband, Captain Bombardier, transformed the planet's monarchy into an elective one, utilizing direct democracy as its primary form of decision and law-making. The first elections saw the Duchess and Captain Bombardier elected as co-rulers of the planet.

The act that transformed the planet into its new democratic government was the charter. The charter also stated that the planet shall be pacifistic and pluralistic.
