The Blade of Talzin
The Blade of Talzin was a flaming green ichor sword. It was summoned from the ether by the Nightsister matriarch Mother Talzin to duel Jedi Master Mace Windu during the Clone Wars.

Description
The sword's hilt closely resembled the face of Malmourral, the demon worshiped by the Frangawl Cult. The blade produced from the "mouth" of the hilt was wreathed in green flames of magical ichor. The sword was also able to resist lightsaber strikes, notably doing so when Talzin used it in a duel against Jedi Master Mace Windu and his purple-bladed lightsaber and on another occasion when Morgan Elsbeth used it in a duel against Ahsoka Tano and her two white blades.

History
During the Clone Wars, Mother Talzin gained the allegiance of the Frangawl Clan, who came to worship her as the Great Mother. The cult gathered the Living Force from several Dagoyan Masters and kidnapped Queen Julia of Bardotta and brought her to the Temple of Malmourral on Zardossa Stix to steal her life force. Talzin arrived on the moon as the ritual began, but she was confronted by Jedi Master Mace Windu and Jar Jar Binks. Talzin summoned her sword from the mist and engaged the Jedi, but Jar Jar managed to free Julia and shatter the sphere containing the stolen life force, causing a massive explosion.

Around 9 ABY, Morgan Elsbeth was given the same blade by the Great Mothers and used it to duel Ahsoka Tano, who took it from her and used it, alongside her own lightsaber, to kill her with two slashes to the abdomen.
