Description: Jacen Syndulla was a Force-sensitive male human-Twi'lek hybrid who was born during the time of the Galactic Civil War. He was the son of General Hera Syndulla and the late Jedi Knight Kanan Jarrus, and the grandson of Twi'lek revolutionary leader Cham Syndulla.

Biography
Birth and early years
Jacen Syndulla was born to General Hera Syndulla of the Rebel Alliance on the planet Lothal in 1 BBY. His father was Jedi Knight Kanan Jarrus, who was killed in combat, before Syndulla was born, against the Galactic Empire while saving Hera and their crew shortly before Lothal's liberation. He was the grandson of Twi'lek freedom fighter Cham Syndulla, a legendary veteran of the Clone Wars and the fight against the Empire.

Syndulla grew up during the Galactic Civil War, which his mother fought in for the Rebel Alliance. By the time the Empire was shattered in 4 ABY, during the Battle of Endor, the young Syndulla was already considered a member of his mother's crew on the starship Ghost and was given the callsign Spectre 7. Although Syndulla grew up never knowing his father, he was nonetheless surrounded by love from the people he considered family, including the droid C1-10P or "Chopper." Chopper, who was a companion to his mother since her childhood, became a close and constant companion to Syndulla. Despite the aged astromech's usually cantankerous personality, being around the young boy brought out his playful side.

By 5 ABY, Jacen and Hera were separated as his mother participated in the final stretch of the Galactic Civil War, including the Battle of Jakku where she had a near-death experience and thought of Jacen during what she believed to be her last moments.

New Republic
Around 9 ABY, Jacen accompanied his mother when she went to speak with the New Republic Senate Committee, staying with Chopper while Hera attended the meeting via hologram, requesting approval to lead a task force to the Denab system for an investigation following an incident involving Imperial loyalists that may indicate the return of Grand Admiral Thrawn. While his mom was in the meeting, Chopper told Jacen that "Aunt Sabine" was training under Ahsoka Tano to become a Jedi. After Hera got out of her meeting, Jacen told his mom that he also wanted to be a Jedi.

Following an urgent call that his mother received from Huyang, requesting assistance for Wren and Tano on Seatos, Jacen and Chopper went with her aboard the Ghost. Along with five T-65B X-wing starfighters flown by Captain Carson Teva and Lieutenants Baysee, Mowaat, Jensu, and Lander, the fleet jumped into hyperspace at Hera's command as Jacen pulled the hyperdrive lever.

Arriving at Seatos, Jacen and his mother narrowly avoided the Eye of Sion's path of destruction as it jumped to hyperspace. Landing on the planet's surface, the two immediately sensed that something was off, with both Ahsoka and Sabine having disappeared without explanation. Unbeknownst to them, Ahsoka had been cast into the waters around the reflex point henge and was in the midst of a near death experience within the mysterious World Between Worlds. Through the Force, Jacen sensed her presence, and helped Huyang and his mother find and rescue the wayward Jedi from the sea. Following her recovery, Jacen and Ahsoka shared a warm reunion before she and Huyang made their own hyperspace jump in pursuit of the Eye of Sion with the help of a flock of Purrgil. Jacen watched with wonder from the Ghost as the immense creatures vanished with a brilliant flash of light into the vastness of space.

Personality and traits

Jacen Syndulla was a male hybrid, born to a human father and a Twi'lek mother. He had mostly human features, though his green hair was similar to his mother's green skin, and the tips of his ears and his eyelashes were also green. By the time of the New Republic Era, Jacen was 1.42 meters tall.

The blend of his expectational parents, the boy showed aptitude as a pilot at a young age, and Hera's old friend and crew member, Sabine Wren, recognized that Syndulla was born to fly, just like his mother. He also had blue eyes and tan skin. Jacen had a close relationship with Chopper, who became his companion while his mother was away, with the two gaining a reputation for causing trouble when left together, as noted by Mon Mothma. Jacen also wished to become a Jedi, like his father before him.

Powers and abilities

Like his father, Jacen was Force-sensitive, his strong connection to the Force allowed him to sense Ahsoka Tano duel with her former Master Anakin Skywalker in the World Between Worlds, hearing the lightsabers clash, which allowed the New Republic fleet to find Tano.
