SPECIAL ABILITIES

Bite: Z'Rakkon are capable of a powerful bite (STR+1D).

Resin: Z'Rakkon can create a tough resin they create their nests from, they will embed prey within it for consumption later, restraining a target with a 5D strength if it hits.

Tentacles: Instead of biting or pinning their prey, Z'Rakkon can attack with multiple Tentacles, doing 1d6 attacks without penalty, doing Str stun damage.

Pin: Z'Rakkon can leap atop their prey, pinning them to the ground, with a Str+1D attack to pin them, allowing them to make Bite attacks against their pinned prey.

Control the Hive: A Z'Rakkon Queen can control a large number of Z'Rakkon through pheromones, making them slaves to her will. Sera Lamare can additionally try to add other species to the hive, making them slaves to her will, she make an attack and wound her target, then she can make a Willpower vs Willpower (or Control for Force Sensitives) test against them to dominate and control them if she wins the test.

Description: A former Tagge Co Scientist, Sera Lemare went rogue in her investigation of the Z'Rakkon species and her attempt to use them as the ultimate biological weapon, when she took perverse pleasure in experimenting on live creatures. After seeing her team transformed into Z'Rakkon Hybrids turning on one another and tearing themselves apart, she Hybridised herself into a Z'Rakkon Queen to take control of the hive and direct it.
Her space bourne laboratory, The Endless Mercy, became the sight of a showdown between Darth Vader and herself when she attempted to prove how dangerous her hive was, and she attempted to bring Vader into the hive under her control. This failed, and she and her hive were all destroyed when Vader crashed the vessel into a planet killed all aboard except himself.
