Equipment D6 / Holopuck

Name: Holopuck
Type: Holographic device
Culture: Bounty hunters
Purpose: Displaying bounties
Affiliation: Bounty Hunters' Guild, Galactic Empire
Scale: Character
Cost: 500
Availability: 2
Game Notes: Displays a hologram of data stored within it, usually used to identify targets for Bounty Hunters.

Description: Holopucks, also known as holographic pucks, data pucks, or referred to as bounty pucks, were a small, simple holographic device utilized by the Bounty Hunters' Guild that identified a quarry. Holopucks listed the details of a bounty: the amount of credits offered, the circumstances (or crimes) that warranted the bounty, the operational jurisdiction allowed for pursuit, and the specific conditions required to collect.

Displaying a holographic image of the quarry accompanied by the word "WANTED" in Aurebesh and the bounty payout, a puck provided information that when combined with the use of a tracking fob, allowed Guild members to hunt their quarry to the edge of the galaxy. In 9 ABY, the Guild on Nevarro handed pucks out to their members. By taking the puck, the hunter accepted the bounty. The Galactic Empire maintained a target registry that was listed on data pucks carried by Clone X troopers.

Stats by FreddyB, Descriptive Text from WookieePedia.
Image copyright LucasArts.
Any complaints, writs for copyright abuse, etc should be addressed to the Webmaster FreddyB.