Description

At Attin frogdogs were a type of frog-dog from the planet At Attin. Standing 0.35 meters tall, they were quadrupeds with mottled brown skin and a pair of prominent black eyes, with small ear holes behind them. Their large mouth was filled with long, white teeth.

Behavior

Bright, inquisitive, loyal, and attentive, At Attin frogdogs were sought for the companionship they offered and kept as domestic pets.

History

During the New Republic Era on At Attin, the Ithorian Misses Ikk owned a pet At Attin frogdog, and took it for a walk on a leash through a suburban neighborhood. While on his way to school, the human child Wim ran past Ikk and her At Attin frogdog, causing the pet to begin barking. The Ithorian began speaking in Ithorese as Wim shouted an apology without stopping.

The following day, Wim overslept and missed the hoverbus to school, forcing him to ride a hoverbike instead to try and make it on time for his Career Assessment Test. As he hurriedly left his house on the bike, he once again raced past Misses Ikk and the frog-dog, causing the pet to begin barking again.

When pirates later arrived on At Attin and took control of the world, Ikk and her frog-dog were out for a walk and stared up at the arrival of the pirate's frigate over the city where they lived. The frog-dog began barking loudly at the vehicle, which soon opened fire on the surface and deployed pirates to round up Ikk and the other residents. The pirates were then defeated when the New Republic arrived to provide aid.
