Creatures D6 / Gizka (Small Rapid Breeding F

Name: Gizka
Distinctions: Reproduced every few days
Homeworld: Possibly Lehon, Manaan (immigrated)

Dexterity: 3D
Perception: 2D
Strength: 2D

Special Abilities

Omnivore: Gizka eat almost anything, finding electical wiring especially interesting and edible, causing great damage to vehicles and installations they infest.

Hide: Being small creatures, Gizka can hide from detection in small spaces, allowing them to avoid detection and extermination, this gives them a +3D bonus to their Hide and Sneak skills.

Fast Reproducing: Gizka can give birth within days of having given birth to their previous litter. This can lead to rapid infestations of Gizka within mere weeks of a Gizka first arriving on a ship or planet.

Move: 8

Description: Gizka were small reptiles that could be found all across the galaxy.

Biology and appearance

Whatever their native world, their extraordinary reproduction rate led to a fair amount of gizka on many worlds, even including uncharted planets such as Lehon, finding their way from the wreckage of crashed starships. It has been alternatively postulated that they came from that planet originally, spreading along with the Infinite Empire. Their exponential population growth led to them being considered pests on almost as many worlds as they inhabited, as they commonly ate electrical wiring.

They were the source for the delicacy gizka steak. Some species of sentient carnivores, like Trandoshans, seemed to think that gizka were one of those kinds of animals that "everything tastes like."

History

The Ebon Hawk once played host to a temporary colony of gizka, in an incident involving mishandled cargo, an Aqualish and a Tatooine shipping company.

Stats by FreddyB, Descriptive Text from WookieePedia.
Image copyright LucasArts.
Any complaints, writs for copyright abuse, etc should be addressed to the Webmaster FreddyB.