Description: Strang was an alien antiques dealer who attended a Senate Investiture week party hosted by the antiquities collector Davo Sculdun on the planet Coruscant in 3 BBY. Strang tried to guess the age of fellow dealer Luthen Rael's ring at the event before joining a tour of Sculdun's gallery of antiquities. During the tour, Sculdun showed Strang and the others a number of artifacts, including the Lost Tairn and the Tinian Codex, and a tense debate occured between Senator Mon Mothma and Director Orson Krennic.

Biography

Ring analysis

Strang was an alien antiques dealer who attended an Investiture Party hosted by the antiquities collector Davo Sculdun in Sculdun Tower on the planet Coruscant during Senate Investiture week in 3 BBY. At the party, Strang examined a ring worn by fellow antiques dealer Luthen Rael—secretly a member of the rebel Axis network—and guessed that it was pre-Carvian from the third millennium, but Rael dismissed this as a good guess.

Strang then acknowledged that the stone was Carvian, but reasserted that the ring was older. Rael then revealed that it was thought to date to the Lost Empire, shocking the antiques dealer Cleave, who was surprised Rael wore out such an ancient piece. Rael then told the other dealers that he had brought it in the hope that one of them might make an offer to purchase it, earning a laugh when he called them all thieves.

A tense tour

Rael, Strang, and Cleave were among those chosen for a tour of Sculdun's gallery of antiquities along with Senator Mon Mothma and her husband, Perrin Fertha, who motioned Strang and Cleave and the gallery's art consultant, Mishko, over as the tour was about to begin. Cleave responded that the trio would meet the others there. The Imperial Security Bureau personnel Orson Krennic, Heert, Lagret, and Moy also joined the tour, as did Sculdun's wife, Runai Sculdun.

Davo started the tour with introductions and then showed the group the Lost Tairn artefact as Rael's assistant, Kleya Marki, entered the gallery separately with bureau member Lonni Jung to remove a listening device from the Tinian Codex artifact. Once Sculdun had finished describing the tairn, the group moved on to other objects in the gallery including a Carmeenian helmet, which prompted an intense debate between Mothma and Krennic on the nature of the Battle of Carmeen. Strang and Cleave stood together listening to the debate, each holding a drinks glass.

Expressions of mirth on their faces, Strang, Mishko, Luthen Rael, Lonni Jung, and Cleave stand around the Tinian Codex in Davo Sculdan's stark white antiques gallery.
Strang laughed at Orson Krennic's joke.

Davo eventually moved the group on to an object that had been found being used as ballast in a swamp freighter, eliciting a laugh from them all. They then reached Jung and Marki, who had just removed the device, at the codex and Jung explained that the artefact was from a world where blindness was considered a gift. When Krennic quipped that they all knew people who would be right at home on such a world, Strang and others laughed.

Personality and traits

Strang had thick hands with stubby fingers, white skin, white hair, and gray eyes.

Equipment

At Sculdun's party, Strang wore black, white, and gray robes with a golden bracelet on their right wrist and a silver brooch with amber-colored brooch at their throat.
