Description: Sevn was a human female, former mercenary, turned bounty hunter, who lived during the Republic Era. In her youth, she worked as a mercenary for the Basham but later defected the group and became a bounty hunter. Sevn and her bounty hunter partner, the droid IV-A4 were assigned a bounty by Jin-Sim Canbelon of Zonus Corporation. However, she soon rejected the bounty and confronted Canbelon demanding him to free his slaves. After a duel with Canbelon, Sevn and IV-A4 freed Canbelon's slaves.

Biography

Sevn was a human female from Mita who lived during the Republic Era. She was orphaned during a war and later kidnapped by the mercenary group the Basham. The Basham raised her and gave her the name Sevn. They trained her as a soldier and she eventually became one of their best. However, at the age of seventeen, Sevn betrayed and defected the Basham. Sevn's defection caused the Basham to send agents after her on multiple occasions. Eventually, Sevn was caught in a burning building after Basham agents tracked her down, but she was rescued by a Jedi, who killed the agents.

Some time later, Sevn formed a partnership with the droid IV-A4. She and IV-A4 were assigned by Jin-Sim Canbelon, the CEO of Zonus Corporation, to seek out a bounty on a Twi'lek on the planet Genya. Sevn and IV-A4 used a speeder bike to travel to a building, where they met Eno and several others, whose family members were enslaved by Canbelon. Sevn originally planned to follow through on the bounty and bring the captured Eno back with her and IV-A4 to Canbelon. However, after the stunncuffed Eno dropped a holoprojector of her and her sister, Sevn had a change of heart. IV-A4 requested that they completed their task, but Sevn rejected his request and broke into a rage and opened fire with multiple blasters on the building, before departing on his own.

Sevn traveled back to Zonus Corporation with her captives in stunncuffs. She confronted Canbelon requesting her bounty, while IV-A4 appeared to depart the planet in their starship. Sevn demanded that Canbelon released all of his slaves, while she brought her captives to Canbelon. Canbelon refused her request, citing that for security reasons, employees were not allowed to interact with outside parties. In response, Sevn unlocked her captives' binders, and they all opened fire on Canbelon's two massive battle droids. Sevn quickly destroyed the droids, which led to a duel between her and Canbelon. During their duel, Canbelon revealed his massive golden droideka, as he tried to subdue Sevn. However, IV-A4 soon returned, and helped Sevn destroy the droideka, while Sevn's mask was also destroyed in the process. The bounty hunter duo captured Canbelon and subsequently freed his slaves.

Personality and traits
Sevn had red and black hair tied back in a ponytail, one blue and one brown eye, as well light skin. She had a partnership with her droid IV-A4, however, their relationship became strained while they performed a bounty for the disreputable businessman Jin-Sim Canbelon. Sevn was caring and she did not like seeing others suffer, as she abandoned the bounty on the Twi'lek Eno, and instead freed Canbelon's slaves.

Skills and abilities
Sevn was a trained as a soldier and became one of the Basham's best. She was skilled in both combat and subversion.

Equipment
Sevn was armed with a blaster pistol that she kept in a tan holster. She wore a black and red crop top, brown gloves, black pants and black boots. She had tan padding on her right knee down to her ankle. Sevn also wore a tan mask and she had a dark cloak.
